Progress 20-04-2026

Rolfe • April 20, 2026 • Estimated reading time: 1 min

What

This week I attempted to extend the functionality of my program by adding additional features. However, due to other academic commitments and my poor time management, I was unable to make meaningful progress. A significant portion of my time was spent dealing on other workload.

So What

This lack of progress has highlighted weaknesses in my time management and planning. I underestimated how long certain tasks would take, which resulted in less time being available for this project. I will have to scrap features I had planned to implement

Now What

If time allows, I will attempt to implement a multi-currency system along with integration of an exchange rate API, potentially automated using cron to keep rates updated. However, my main focus will be on delivering a complete and functional submission rather than adding ambitious features at the last minute. But until then I will focus on the written assignment